OVERVIEW AND BACKGROUND

The 2000 Population and Housing Census was carried out by the Statistical Office of Estonia (Statistikaamet) from March 31 to April 9, 2000. The Population Census was of great political, economic, cultural, national, and international importance, as it was Estonia's first independently conducted census in more than half a century. Data was collected through digital questionnaires and disseminated electronically through a Statistics Estonia online database. The census counted persons who were in the Republic of Estonia on the dates of the census, as well as persons residing in Estonia but who were in foreign states temporarily for a term of up to one year. The results depicted a population decrease of 12.5% from the last census in 1989.
